Fig 1

Fit the security ball onto the tee. Place the assembly onto a raised firm surface under the coupling head to be secured, for example the hitchlock body.

Fig 2

Raise the coupling handle until it locks in the open position.

Fig 3

Lower the coupling onto the security ball until the coupling handle closes down. The security ball should now be retained by the coupling.

Note: it may be necessary to push firmly down on the front of the coupling in order to activate the mechanism. Keep hands clear of all moving parts to avoid the possibility of injury.

Remove the tee from the security ball and fit the hitchlock body by sliding it over the coupling from front to back.

Fig 5

Remove the lock holder from the locking bolt body.

Fig 6

The locking bolt body can then be fitted from either side by passing it through the holes in the side of the hitchlock body and under the coupling handle.

Note: It may be necessary to raise the coupling handle slightly and/or guide the lock pin through the 2nd hole with your free hand.

Insert the lock holder into the locking body and secure by turning the key anti-clockwise. Remove the key.

Note: For optimal security it is recommended all couplings fitted with 2 vertical bolts should also be fitted with a coupling skid.
